

Latinity in the Post-Classical World

Internationale Tagung des Ludwig Boltzmann-Instituts für Neulateinische Studien (Innsbruck) in Zusammenarbeit mit dem Pontificio Comitato di Scienze Storiche und mit Unterstützung des Römischen Instituts der Görres-Gesellschaft

10.–13. April 2013, Campo Santo Teutonico

Verantwortlich: Graham Barrett, Oren J. Margolis

Referenten:

Lav Subaric: Latin and national identity. The changing attitudes towards the lingua patria in the Kingdom of Hungary

Jonathan Conant: Latinity and the afterlife of Empire in the eighth- and ninth-century southern Mediterranean

Jerzy Axer: Latin and the problem of the identity of the gentry nation: the case of the Polish Lithuanian Commonwealth

Andrew Laird: The status of Latin, education, and the indigenous nobility in sixteenth-century Mexico, 1521-1600

Benoît Grévin: The forgotten empire of ars dictaminis in the eleventh to fifteenth centuries

Lucio Del Corso: "The remains of the day". Latin as a language of culture in late antique Egypt. The papyrological evidence

Peter Heather: Court poetry from Claudian to Charlemagne?

Dennis Looney: The Carmina of Ludovico Ariosto: ingeniosa sed duriuscula

Graham Barrett: Laments for the decline of Latin. On the sociocultural capital of a language

Martin McLaughlin: The first century of humanist Latin in Italy. From Petrarch to Alberti, 1380s-1470s

Christopher Celenza: Some fifteenth-century views on the status of ancient Latin

David D'Avray: Contamination and the cultural history of mendicant Latin sermons

David Rundle: Divided by a common language? Being eloquent versus being understood in fifteenth-century Latin Michel Banniard: Spoken communication and written language in eighth- and ninth-century Italy. The contribution of the Chartae Latinae Antiquiores

David Norbrook: Lucy Hutchinson and the translation of neo-Latin

Marianne Pade: Litterae restauratae. The commentary in fifteenth-century Italy

Oren J. Margolis: Italicum in moribus. Italian humanism, Latin language, and the Ultramontani of the Quattrocento

Mary Garrison: Latinity, orthodoxy, orthopraxy. From the Insular world to the Continent

Farkas Gábor Kiss: Lapsus protoparentum. The role of Latin translation in the reception of European literature in the Habsburg monarchy of the eighteenth century

Paul Gwynne: Nescio quod nostris magnum et memorabile fatis exemplum, Fortuna, paras (Lucan 4.496-7). Refashioning the heroic: Jesuit epic and the language of empire